

Paper 2 Workshop Exercises

De-googling Exercise (3:10-3:45). Meet with the other members of your group and discuss your strategy for the next three days. Make sure everyone has chosen a role and that everyone is available to attend the conference times indicated in the gray box below. If you have not designed an experiment (!) you should settle on one now. If you have an experiment but are still in the process of conducting it, discuss your progress. If you already have all the data, you can use this as an opportunity to help the Discussion writer, or maybe the Introduction writer.

Specialists Exercise 3:45-4:20). Break out of your regular groups and form four new groups: all the Introduction writers, all the Method writers, all the Results writers, and all the Discussion writers. Re-read Provine 32-35, underlining at least four sentences that perform your specialist function. Provine hasn't written this in lab report format, so they may not be in order. Now pair off (in threes if necessary). Help your partner(s) re-write the sentences to reflect their own research.

Reflection Exercise (3:00-3:10). Answering the following questions in the space below. These are yes/no questions but please elaborate a bit more. Tear off your answers as indicated and hand the scrap to me when you finish. I will ask you to answer these same four questions next week when your final draft is due.

- Are you accomplishing your goals for this assignment?
- Are your group members facilitating or obstructing your progress toward these goals?
- Is the Google Docs program facilitating or obstructing your progress?
- Do you prefer an individualized grade for your "section" of the paper or a shared group grade?
