

Cryme Tyme

This tag team is composed of JTG(left) and Shad(right) who come from Brooklyn, New York. The style of the team is to make a parody and perform as street thugs which represent the stereotypes based on racism. They usually talk with slangs of Black and in rap style. They do small tricks like stealing property of others'. In addition to the racial stereotypes, I think their style may relate to the bad public security previously and complex cultural and racial condition. And the title of their team may be the special replacement of “crime time” for black people, which closely connects to their style, meaning that here is the time for crime.

Tajiri

Second one is Tajiri from Japan. He presents as a sneak who does small trick and dirty work to win the match. His famous character is that he will spurt the poison mist out from his mouth to his enemy. His style may relate to the ninja in Japanese culture, sneaking, stalking in the dark, moving rapidly and craftily, and attacking from the enemy's back, and these images may also reflect the stereotypes imposed on Japanese.

Here are entrance videos of the wrestlers I presented Tuesday. And you may have the vivid images of their styles. I hope these video won't be too violent.
